

WOMAN'S WORLD.

Life at Vassar College—A Girl's Drive Dead—Matinee Girls at the Pond Show—Broke the Deadlock—Miss North's Romance—Timely Notes About Women.

She Broke the Deadlock.
Fortunate Josiah Hicks! At Bedford, Pa., Mr. Hicks has just been named for congress. This was not done hurriedly; on the contrary, Mr. Hicks was nominated on the 23rd ballot. There had been practically a deadlock, which the tricks and cunning of the shrewdest political workers had been unable to break. Mrs. Hicks, who had been quietly staying at home attending to her duties, began to wonder why Josiah did not come home. Pretty soon she made it her business to inquire. When she heard of the deadlock, in which the Hicks' aspirations were involved, she packed her bag, put on her bonnet and took the train for Bedford. There she determined to find out what it was that was opposing her husband's nomination, and why.

This she did so successfully that a Philadelphia paper, relating the details of Hicks' nomination, says that the credit of breaking the deadlock, which might have continued for weeks to come, is due to the able manner in which Mrs. Josiah Hicks championed her husband's cause. Her pleasant, dignified manner and convincing arguments were able to accomplish what no effort of politicians could effect. Mr. Hicks was subsequently nominated by acclamation.

Miss North's Romance.
A pretty love story where love stories are least expected is revealed in the announcement of the engagement of Miss North, the young king's daughter. Miss North is a young, very handsome girl and has been an unquestioned success in the great world. It has been generally believed that such young women when they are posed advantageously against the background of a great fortune, as is Miss North, are produced through subtle and indirect processes by nature for the purpose of renewing the blood and replenishing the coffers of noblemen. Miss North has been regarded so widely to be the bride ultimately of a certain duke that the announcement of her engagement to George Crocker, who is not only without title, but is a Liverpool business man, has been a nine days' wonder. It appears that Miss North for four years has desired to marry Mr. Crocker, but her father, Colonel North, who doubtless felt that strawberry leaves were somewhere to be found in his shrubbery, refused his consent. But love has found a way; the father has yielded, and now everybody is chirping as if love had just been born into the world.

Not Ashamed of Her Age.
Mrs. Lavina Fillmore, a resident of Clarence, N. Y., widow of Rev. Gleason Fillmore and a cousin of Millard Fillmore, was 105 years old on Aug. 15. Mrs. Fillmore was living when George Washington was inaugurated president of the United States. She was born in Waterbury, Conn., in 1787, and moved to New York when very young. She was living with her husband in Buffalo when that city was burned by the British in 1812. Mrs. Fillmore has resided on her farm at Clarence since her husband's death in 1875.

She has never ridden on a railroad train, has never seen the telegraph or telephone in operation, and has evinced no curiosity in regard to these fruits of science, preferring to live her last days amid the peaceful surroundings of her quiet home. She is not ignorant, however, of the improvements made in the world, for she had been a constant reader of the newspapers. Her Bible has been read and reread until she nearly knows it all by heart. So well preserved comparatively is she that her neighbors think she will live for many years.—Chicago Post.

Standing Up for the Sex.
The inability of the average woman to understand was again demonstrated in a Fulton street shoe store one day last week. A rather nice appearing woman came in, and after seating herself on one of the broad leather sofas, asked the salesman to show her a certain kind of shoe. "We don't keep ladies' shoes here," said the salesman, politely. The woman's eyes snapped as she exclaimed: "Don't keep ladies' shoes? Why don't you keep them?" The salesman explained that the firm only manufactured gentlemen's shoes, and only sold them here. "Oh," said the woman rising, "I think women are just as good as men; but it is very evident that you don't think so." With these indignant words the woman walked hurriedly out of the store. After catching his breath the salesman had a good laugh all to himself.—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

Friends of Sir Walter Scott.
By the death of Mrs. Carruthers, of Inverness, there has passed away one of the last of those intimately connected with the family and household of Sir Walter Scott. Mrs. Carruthers was the youngest daughter of the great novelist's faithful friend and amanuensis, William Lauder, of Kilmorie, Ayrshire, and author of "Lucy's Plittin". The deceased lady's husband, Mr. Robert Carruthers, the younger son, was a son of the well known editor and biographer of Pope, who was also proprietor and editor of the Inverness Courier for nearly half a century. There still survives another daughter of William Lauder, who resides at Inverness, and has in her possession the desk in which the "Waverley" manuscripts were found, and which was given to her father by Sir Walter Scott.

A Summer Experience.
A kind mistress who not only respects a girl's rights, but to some degree her tastes and feelings, is occasionally rewarded in ways she did not dream of. This fall a girl who had been promised half pay for the months of July and August to return, astonished the household by declaring, as she dropped her bundle in a kitchen chair, "she didn't want a cent, for she was only too glad to get back where things looked like home." It seemed she had been at a seaside resort near the city, where she had been asked to do the work for twelve, and had then gone to a house away with all kinds of bugs through negligence in properly clearing out the closets and refrigerator on leaving. She had never realized before how different these things could be in other places.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A record of uninterrupted cases for nearly half a century has convinced sensible people that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best in the market, why try new things, when you know that you have what you need? It is infallible.

Triplets Sixty-nine Years Old.

Monday evening, at the residence of Mr. Alden T. Brown, Waltham, a reception was tendered to three of Mrs. Brown's aunts, who are triplets and sixty-nine years of age, the anniversary of their birth occurring on the 20th of last June. Mr. Brown's mother, a sister of the triplets and herself a twin, was present. These four ladies were born in Union, Mo., and are the survivors of a family of thirteen children, seven of them being twins and triplets. The triplets, when young girls, all worked in the cotton mills with General N. P. Banks when he was a boy there.—Boston Herald.

The Gracious Czarina.
English papers are bubbling over with praise of the graciousness of the czarina in kissing a hospital nurse who had been in the midst of cholera infection—an impulsive womanly way of showing her admiration for the nurse's bravery and self sacrifice. How much greater the bravery of Queen Margaret of Italy, who during the plague walked herself into the wards of the hospitals, cheering both nurses and patients with her presence and earnest sympathy, while the poor victims pressed their lips to the hand she gave them, and died as content as if in the presence of one of their beloved saints.

Yale and Coeducation.
As long ago as 1778 a certificate was granted by President Ezra Stiles, of Yale college, to a young woman who had passed the examinations necessary to enter the college, but was deterred on account of her sex. Now after 114 years Yale is ready to offer post graduate study to women. It is not, however, ready for coeducation. It is as far from it as 11 o'clock is from 12 o'clock.—Woman's Journal.

American Women Abroad.
It is estimated that 20,000 Americans have crossed the ocean since May, and of these the great majority are women. Estimating that half these women had $1,000 to invest in bric-a-brac, gloves, gowns and bonnets, and that a great many had several times as much, it is easy to understand why American women are accounted the best customers of the European shops.

One of the best known woman farmers in Great Britain, Miss Hope-Johnstone, of Marchbankwood, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, died the other day. She had a large sheep farm in Eskdale, which she superintended herself, and she was an excellent authority on all agricultural matters.

Princess Marie of Edinburgh. the betrothed of Prince Ferdinand of Roumania, is a beautiful and clever woman, and has already won a warm place in the heart of the queen of Roumania (Carmen Sylva).

The new Duchess of Sutherland, one of the youngest women to wear the ducal coronet in England, is a member of the Writers' club, and a contributor to the literature of the day.

At a recent marriage feast the wedding cake of the bride's mother was served. It had been kept for that purpose, wrapped in brandied paper in a tin box.

For promises to be even more popular as a trimming for evening gowns than it was last season, and white satin a favorite material for the fur to adorn.

In the Hotel Beatrice, the women's dormitory at the Chicago university, with accommodations for 100, nearly every room is engaged.

Guaranteed Cure.
We authorize our advertised druggist to sell Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, upon this condition: If you are afflicted with a Cough, Cold or any Lung, Throat or Chest trouble, and will use this remedy as directed, giving it a fair trial, and experience no benefit, you may return the bottle and have your money refunded. We could not make this offer did we not know that Dr. King's New Discovery could be relied on. It never disappoints. Trial bottles free at Short & Haynes' drug store. Large size 50c. and $1.00.

The Innocent.
She stood looking up at him so innocently from under the sprig of mistletoe that still hung in the parlor as a reminder of the Christmas season; she was so pretty, and she was under the mistletoe, and he couldn't help it—he had kissed her. It was an unpretentious and unmanly thing to do. He knew that now, as he remembered her frightened, startled look, and the miserable excuses he had tried to stammer out; yes, and the tears in her eyes, and the little choking sob with which she had received his stammering apology.

"Who could think she would feel like that about it?" he thought: "dear little as you are!" And she—after he was gone, she lay down on the sofa and cried. "I like him—so much and now—to think that he should kiss me at last—and then say he didn't mean anything by it. What does he think I stood there for?—the little idiot!"—Life.

A Leader.
Since its first introduction, Electric Bitters has gained rapidly in popular favor, until now it is clearly in the lead among pure medicinal tonics and alteratives—containing nothing which permits its use as a beverage or intoxicant, it is recognized as the best and purest medicine for all ailments of Stomach, Liver or Kidneys. It will cure Sick Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, and drive Malaria from the system. Satisfaction guaranteed with each bottle or the money will be refunded. Price only 50c. per bottle. Sold by Short & Haynes, druggists.

In an English Railway Train.
First Artist—Children don't seem to me to sell now as they used.
Second Artist (in a hoarse whisper)—Well, I was at Stodge's yesterday. He'd just knocked off three little girls' heads—horrid raw things! a dealer came in, sir; bought 'em directly—took 'em away, wet as they were, on the stretchers and wanted Stodge to let him have some more next week.
Old Lady (putting her head out of the window and yelling)—Guard, guard, stop the train and let me out, or I'll be murdered.—London Tit-Bits.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Its record of forty years is one of triumph over blood diseases.

THE CHARM OF GERMAN WOMEN.

It is Only in This Country That They Receive Their Full Development.

German women come honestly by their charm. At a time when the English, French and Italian women commanded scant respect they were venerated and placed not on equality, but on a superior plane to men. He who beat a woman was punished twice as severely as if he had beaten a man. He who wronged a woman was executed, unless the woman chose to save him by becoming his wife; when she declined, not only did the wrong doer expiate his crime with his life, but the house where he lived was torn down and every living creature in it, to the very cattle, was put to death.

German girls married late—generally after rather than before twenty; and it may be inferred that their spinsterhood was dull from the fact that the German word for a wedding is hochzeit—a high old time. But they brought no dowry to their husbands, except perhaps a knife or a spoon, and for three days after the wedding a sharp sword separated wife from husband in the nuptial couch. Notwithstanding the sword the husband gave her on the morning after the marriage a present called a morgengabe, from which word the present "morganatic marriage" is derived.

The women fought in the wars by the side of their husbands, and were thus insured to experience and fatigue. Widows never remarried; the German phrase ran, "As a woman has but one body and but one soul, so she can have but one husband." Perhaps these reminiscences of the ancient Germans may help us to understand the loyalty and beauty and charm of German women today.

It is only in this country that the modern German woman receives her full development. On her native heath she is less attractive than the English woman, or the French woman, or the American. She is so impressive an example of immaculate virtue that she oppresses other people with a consciousness of their own depravity, and they shrink out of sight of such spotless propriety. Vasili does imply that ladies of the court at Berlin sometimes condescend to despise in loco—which may be freely translated by saying that they are equal to a flirtation in a back parlor when the lights are out.

But Vasili's prejudice is notorious. According to the memoirs of Alice of Hesse, so much starch goes to the outfit of a German lady of fashion that unbending is impossible, and her views are confirmed by the statements of poor Caroline Bauer in her autobiography. At Berlin they have a proverb which is equivalent to our "Be good, and you will be happy." A French scolder retorted that, from what he had seen of German happiness, he would like to try a little misery by way of a change, but then the breach between Germans and French is flagrant, and the members of one nation cannot figure as impartial judges of the other.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Hard on the Gentlemen.

Among the bylaws of the new "Pioneer club," established in London for ladies, is one that sounds extremely severe. It runs as follows: "Children, servants and gentlemen can only be admitted to the waiting room, and can on no account be allowed to enter the club rooms." One almost suspects a touch of satiric humor in placing "gentlemen" after children and servants. Is it an intentional paraphrase of "women, children and idiots"? This view of the matter is strengthened by perusal of the names of the ladies on the general committee of the club. Lady Harberton leads, as she is entitled to do, not only by reason of her rank, but because of the well known strength of her opinions on the woman question.

She is followed by Mrs. Eva McLaren, Mrs. Rose Mary Crawshaw, Miss Sharrman Crawford, Mrs. Oscar Wilde and Mrs. Frank Snood, all of whom have identified themselves for years past with the same great cause. The object of the club, as stated in the rules, is to further every movement for the advancement and enlightenment of women, and the sole qualification for membership is "an active personal interest in any of the various movements for women's social, educational and political advancement."

She Killed a Panther with an Ax.
Mrs. Susan Neal, seventy years old, who lived with her son on a ranch in Maverick county, killed a full grown panther with an ax. She was out in the yard when some animal rushed by her which she thought was a dog until she turned around and saw a full grown panther in a small tree near her. She called two dogs, but one of them ran away. The other saw the beast and made a dash for it. The panther sprang out of the tree and ran toward her, but a number of kids were confined, but just as he was sprang on the fence the dog caught him and they began fighting. The other dog now returned and took a hand in the fight. Mrs. Neal seized an ax, and when the dogs distracted the panther's attention she dealt it a blow on the head which stunned it and allowed her to strike a fatal blow.—Texas Co. Chicago Herald.

How She Wears Her Hair.

Hardly a woman wears her hair entirely plain. She may not be given to puffing and waving and curling the locks themselves, but she is very apt to introduce some sort of ornament into it. Bandoes are very popular, and come in gold, silver and tortoise shell, as well as in ribbon to match the gown. Then there is an especially elaborate piece of network of gold and pearls called the Mary Stuart coil, which is worn over the loosely coiled hair, but is rather expensive for the woman of moderate means. Very pretty braids in silver, with high, crownlike fronts cut in long, slender points, and either burnished until they shine like diamonds or left dull, are becoming to all faces, and need no special arrangement of the hair, as they sit well on the head, whether it is arranged high or low.—New York Letter.

Those Dreadful Freckles.

They seem to trouble nine girls out of every ten, and I am sure I do not know why. In the first place, the girl who has freckles or two on her face announces to the world at large that she uses neither paint nor powder. Then, too, she tells that she has been living in that best of all things—the sunshine. But somehow the freckles trouble her: her sweetest thinks they are rather pretty, but she does not agree with him, and she is always asking, "What will take away the freckles?" Well, my dear girl, if you got them a week ago, or a month ago, or some time during the summer, the juice of the lemon, with a teaspoonful of borax in it, dabbed on them will cause them to disappear—that is, if you apply this treatment regularly, not if you put it on tonight and forget it the three nights more to follow.

Sometimes, if they have only just come, a few drops of benzoin, put in the water until it gives it a milky look, used for a few days, will cause them to disappear. And, by the bye, a very nice woman wrote and told me that she could not get benzoin at any drug shop in town. Well, just let her tell the chemists themselves that they keep a very poor stock of goods when they have not that. Five or six drops of it in a basin of water will make it look like skim milk, and make it smell like the fir or cedar trees, while it will cool a sunburned face and give what doctors call "tone" to the skin. But, my dear girls, I do not want you to bother about the freckles. They are really not worth it. Instead, make up your mind that they are sun spots, put on your face to tell the world of the sunny disposition that you have, and of the glad spot that you make at home.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Justly Entitled to It.

Dr. Hale's Household Cough Cure is justly entitled to the praise it is receiving. Wherever introduced it has proven itself the most reliable remedy known for the cure of coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, bronchitis, soreness of the lungs and every kind of a cough from a simple cold to incipient consumption. Purely vegetable. Always reliable and effective. For sale at 25c. and 50c. per bottle at Short & Haynes' drug store.

Promise and Fulfillment.

Andrew Carnegie has been one of the pronounced howlers for "protection" in the Republican ranks. The McKinley bill gave it to him, but evidently not enough, as now he is preparing for protection of quite another kind—that of hopewaves, barricaded walls, and so forth, brought into use and erected to protect him against the outraged workmen who, according to Republican theory rather than practice, were expected to be protected equally with the owners by the system formulated at Washington. But Republican fulfillment does not always follow Republican promise.—Chicago Mail.

For instance, Mrs. Chas. Rogers, of Bay City, Mich., accidentally spilled scalding water over her little boy. She promptly applied Dr. Witt's Witch Hazel Salve, giving instant relief. It's a wonderfully good salve for burns, bruises, sores, and a sure cure for piles. Short & Haynes, Cloverport and Beard & Beeler, Hardinsburg, Ky.

Grape Juice for Winter Use.

Grapes should be very ripe to give the fine flavor unrivaled by any other fruit. The dyspeptic will find grape juice the most delicious and cooling of all drinks, while the sick person, no matter what her ailment, will find both nourishment and coolness in this drink, particularly adapted to the needs of the fever patient. It is also delicious for mince pies and sauces. Nothing could be nicer to serve with cake at a calling reception. The methods of preparation are: Pick grapes from stems, look over carefully and wash in cold water. Pack in 3-inch layers of white sugar. When the jar is full tie over the mouth of it a thick cloth, after which cover with paper. Place in a cool place in the cellar. When used, strain through a wire strainer. Ready for use at Christmas. Pick and wash grapes. Cover with water in a porcelain vessel. Boil until thoroughly cooked. Strain the juice through a jelly cloth, sweeten to taste, heat again and put up in airtight glass jars.—Housewife.

Our Oldest Actresses.

The oldest living American actresses are Clara Fisher Maeder, born in 1811, and Mrs. John Drew, who is seven years younger. Mrs. Drew appeared on the stage a babe of nine months and has acted ever since. Mrs. Maeder was on the stage from 1817 to 1889, and then went into retirement. Mrs. Hannah Birrell, who died in San Francisco a few days ago at the age of seventy-four, was a prominent actress in that city many years, and was Booth's first Ophelia in California.

Many old soldiers, who contracted chronic diarrhoea while in the service, have since been permanently cured of it by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by A. R. Fisher, Cloverport, Ky.
